Manny,

I am writing to thank you in regard to our recent work together. As you know, I own many successful businesses in the DC metro area, and have therefore worked with many legal firms and even more individual attorneys. You stood out for many reasons, and I'd like to take a moment to recognize your efforts.

I was pleasantly surprised at how prepared you were for our first meeting. After a brief telephone conversation regarding the protested liquor license for my new venue Sanctuary 21, you arrived at our first meeting with research documents on hand and a thorough understanding of the particulars of my case. I also appreciated the fact that you had a strategy developed to help us win.

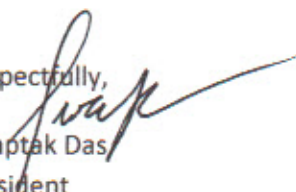

I noticed that you actively listened, while always remaining respectful, fair, reasonable, and cool under pressure. I also appreciated your candor when you disagreed with me. We won because of strategies that stemmed from the combination of your creative mind, complete grasp of complex legal situations, your unique knowledge of the industry, and the resources you have at your disposal.

Your years of experience within the legal system, connections and relationships in the DC area (which are clearly greater than others,) and your solid understanding of the law itself all work together to give you a huge advantage over other attorneys I've worked with in the past. In fact, I wish I could utilize your skills in other legal areas.

Perhaps most importantly, you have a competitive spirit that cannot be taught. This tenacity, which drives your will to succeed and that prompts your immediate responses, clearly pushes you to revise and update strategy with only one goal in mind: winning.

I can say, without reserve, that your legal fees were a bargain for the service I received, and for the favorable outcome of my case. I will certainly recommend your legal services to anyone in need of an outstanding attorney in the Washington, DC area. Once again, thank you for accepting me as a client and for all your hard work.

Respectfully,
